Schomberg

Our local mountain is 648 m above sea level. It is the second highest mountain in the Lennegebirge and the natural park Homert. It gives you a magnificent overview of the land of a thousand mountains.

Schombergturm

The steel lattice mast is visible from afar and located just south of the highest point of the 648 m high Schomberg in the ski resort Wildewiese between Sundern and Finnentrop-Rönkhausen. In September 2006, the 65 m high Vodafon radio tower with its viewing platform at a height of 30 m was officially inaugurated. The 167 steps are easy to climb and the ascent allows a breathtaking view over the northern Ruhr area and Lippe-Land to the 85 km distant Münster, the Teutoburg Forest and the 90 km distant Funkturm near Bielefeld. With very good weather conditions even the 118 km distant Hohe Acht at the Nürburgring in the Eifel can be seen.

Caution

The Wildewieser air is a bit fresh up here!

Storage plant Glinge

The power plant operated today by the Mark-E was completed in 1969 and has an output of 140 MW. The lower basin forms the Glingeachtalsperre in Talder Glinge, which holds about 1.3 million m³ of water. The artificially created upper basin also has a usable volume of more than one million m³ and is more than 270 m higher on the Dahlberg (570 m above sea level). Through the approximately 900-meter-long pressure tunnel, the water is pumped up to the upper reservoir and lowered again over two Francis turbines. A large part of the power plants is underground.

A popular excursion destination for hikers is the always accessible circular route on the dam crown of the upper basin on the Dahlberg. From there, there are wide views of the Sauerland.
